CANNOT CALIBRATE

COMPLAINT:

Conveyor chain would not hold rate and would not slow down below 150 lbs/acre.

CORRECTION:

Checked out and found that coupler between servo motor and valve had screws broken off in it. valve was leaking out of the top of the cartridge. started machine and tested and found that valve needed adjusted but could not be because of screws. set rate on viper pro and manually turned valve to make sure problem was not related to hydraulics or rate sensors. machine would hold rate good when set manually. Noticed that when rate was set manually that servo motor was still constantly moving and would not settle down. Made a call to Raven to make sure everything was set correctly in viper pro. servo still acted up. Checked wiring to make sure no stray voltage was coming into servo, and tried test product node. Problem was diagnosed back to a bad servo motor, priced out servo motor, valve cartridge and coupler individually but they all added up to be more than replacing the complete valve. Ordered new valve and went back out to install when it came in. Tested machine after installing new valve and machine now holds rate.
